Course Overview

Have you ever thought about becoming a spy? You are not alone. There are several million individuals who are active on one or more of the fan clubs for celebrity spies. When you think of spying, do you think of fast cars and flashy clothes or a life spent in the shadows? That could not be further from the truth. That being said, the most valuable asset a spy can have is their own wits. In addition to their own ingenuity, today's spies are supported by a huge technology infrastructure.

Today's spy technology inventors are working on some really imaginative creations. The techniques and equipment of today that supports spying is far more complicated than the earliest spies could ever have imagined. You might have seen movies where the spies have a tiny camera hidden in a pen, an umbrella which is really a poison dart, or a secret message hidden in a shoe. All that pales in comparison to the spy tools available today.

If all this fascinates you or if you are already in the 'spying' business, prepare yourself for the rapid advancement of your professional career by taking our innovative and informative Tradecraft 101 program. It is designed for professionals who want to stay up-to-date on the latest in the area of spying. The program is delivered on CD or electronically, and includes seven modules that take approximately 14 hours to complete. Once you pass all seven exams, you will receive a Certificate of Completion for Tradecraft 101. Get the training that professionals in security, defense, intelligence and espionage receive. Gain the upper hand. Protect your country, yourself, your family, and your business by updating your knowledge and skills.

FACT: Espionage is the act of spying. This art has been around for 4,000 years! Secret messages were written on clay tablets so top-secret information could be passed on.

Quote: "The tools and equipment used for spying was shocking and at the same time reassuring to me as a citizen."
